

14 Munros

7 DAYS

I am climbing Mount Kilimanjaro to raise money for Kenyan's access to clean water and sanitation

DONATIONS NEEDED

- I am taking on the challenge of climbing Kilimanjaro, the highest mountain in Africa for the charity Dig Deep. Dig Deep's mission is to provide Clean Water, Safe Toilets and Good Hygiene through immediate and practical solutions to the 1 million people of Bomet County in Kenya. As an engineering student the rainwater collection systems and latrine solutions effecting upwards of 80,000 people including 11,000 children is something I am passionate about as they inspire me to make a difference. My dad and I, on the left, are challenging ourselves to climb 14 Munros in 7 days to raise money and to train for Kilimanjaro.
- My overall fundraising target is £3500
- 57% of which goes directly to accelerating access to water, sanitation and good hygiene in Bomet County, Kenya
- 43% of which goes towards my expedition costs (not including flights, I am paying for these myself).
- Any donations would be greatly appreciated and can be made to my webpage using the QR code on the left!

Climbing 14 munros is the equivalent of climbing Kilimanjaro 2.5 times!!
